

Improving health. Improving lives.

A Message from Ken Loving, MD

The sadness, pain and anger we have experienced in response to acts of violence against African Americans brings to the forefront the importance of the work community health centers do every day to address health disparities in our communities.

We address the effects of this violence in our daily work, doing our best to remove barriers for patients to provide high quality, affordable health care so that everyone in our community has the opportunity to succeed. Our work is intended to lift up each and every patient we serve and especially focus on the struggles of communities of color.

We reaffirm our commitment to building a healthier and more equitable community for everyone. This work is at the heart of our mission to improve the health and improve the lives of the people we serve.

Recent events, on top of the pandemic these last few months, have placed extraordinary challenges upon all of us. At this time, we must offer additional care and support to one other and to our patients.

Thank you for your continuous support of our work at Access.

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Ken Loving, MD". The signature is written in a cursive style with a large, looped "L" and "V".

Ken Loving, MD, CEO